It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic touble, constipation, but from indigestion, headach, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldweil's Syrup Pepsin, a mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 325 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Burley Society Wins a Point.

The Burley Tobacco Society and members of the American Society of Equity won a temporary victory in the United States Corut in Covington Monday in the suit of James J. Scott and others of Scranton, Pa., doing business under the firm name of Clark & Scott, when the court handed down an opinion sustaining a general demur-rer of the defendants to the petition of the plaintiffs.

Clark & Scott sued for $135,520.40, or three fold damages for injuries said to have been sustained when they were compelled to purchase from the Burley Tobacco Society many thousands of pounds of tobacco at a price named by the society. They contend that but for the existence of the tobacco society they could have purchased the tobacco at a fraction over eight cents per pound and that they were

The detendants fought the case bitterly, employing some of the best legal talent in Kentucky to aid them in their battle. Among those employed were United States Senator William O. Bradley, T. L. Edelen of Frankfort, and Pendleton, Bush & Bush, of Winchester.

They filed a general demurrer to the petition of Clark & Scott and it was this demurrer which was sustained, although the court at the same time

A fair crowd was in attendance upon Carlisle court Monday. All branches of business was brisk and much better than the court of the year past. There was a scarcity of stock and what was offered for sale was disposed of at from 4 to 4½ cents. A number of plug horses were offered and sold around $100. Henry S. Caywood of North Middletown bought a horse for $175, a mule colt for $70 and a yearling colt at $95. John Larue of Shawhan, sold 15 head of yearling mules to Newt Rankin at $140 per head. In their brief filed in support of their demurrer the defendants

In Judge Denis Dundon's court, the will of the late Mrs. Lizzie S. Brooks was probated. After directing that was probated. After directing that her just debts and funeral expenses be paid, the testatrix leaves to her brother, John W. Peck, of Bates county, Missouri, the sum of $100 per year as long as he lives, and to her niece, Miss Arabella Redmon, the sum of $50 per year as long as she lives. The residue of her personal property, and a farm 200 acres of land near Comargo, Montgomery county, is left to her daughter, Mrs. Pearl Cram, for life, and then to revert to her children. Mrs. Cram is named in document as the executrix of the estate. The will is dated October 28, 1903, aud is witnessed by W. B. Allen and George D. Bell.

Allen and George D. Bell.

The last will and testament of the late Mrs. Julia F. Steele was also probated by Judge Dundon. The testatrix, after noting the fact that her three daughters, Ida, Ella and Anna Steele, had been liberally provided for to the exclusion of their sisters and brothers, by her uncle, the late T. K. Marsh, and desiring to leave her children equally protected, wills to the beneficiaries of Mr. Marsh's estate the sum of $50 each. The remainder of her estate, land personalty and money, is left equally to her daughter, Margaret, and son, John Steele. In the case of the former the money is to be invested in real estate as the beneficiary may direct and to remain separate from An unusual election bet is told of by the Carlisle Advocate as follows:

"An election bet was paid in full Saturday by H. B. Bryson. For the past six year Mr. Bryson and Frank Mathias have been making novel bets on the Congressional elections. Last year Mathias lost on Kehoe's election and the result was that he had to roll a hickory put account the court house direct and to remain separate from any claim, debt or control of any hus-oand that she may have. If she dies without issue the property is to revert to her brother, John, and in the event of his dying without children, the same rule applies. In the event both children die without issue, then the property at their death is to revert to the three sisters, Ida, Ella and Anna. The will is dated Dec. 22, 1892, and is witnessed by Robert C. Talbott and Harmon Stift.

The will of the late Julius Herrick was offered for probate but was rejected upon the ground that the docu-ment was written before his recent

(The Tale of a Turkey, by Itself). I was born on a farm. Not on a roulet table nor on a battleship nor on a cake of ice, but on a farm. Turkeys have a habit of being on a farm, and I was just like other tur-

When I first knew I was alive I thought I wasn't. They had me in a cramped, dark, rounded chamber with smooth, white walls. I guessed they were white. There was no room to scratch. So I pushed against all sides of it and broke out. They say this was an egg. After I was out I had no desire to go back again. Some people feel this way about jail.

At first existence was joyous to me. I ran round on my little blue legs picking up worms and bread crumbs and seeds and pieces of gravel and experience. And at night I huddled up with the other turklets against the warm bosom of the steam heat. Mother never chided us. She was an incubator.

But as I began to get better acquainted with the world I learned to know some of its disadvantages. Enemies were many - rats, owls. wet weather, fussy chickens who fight you for your food, and puppy dogs. But as I grew I soon taught away from all the other things but wet weather. We young turkeys had only one friend, a human being. The human being had copious whiskers, indicating that he was to be trusted. He always saw to it that prayer's most invigorating elements. brought one sorrow into his lifehe worried greatly that the food I feathers.

And I grew beautiful. Because of my brilliant stove polish feathers they called me "Black used to pet me, at a distance. Arriving at gobblerhood I had heavy purple wattles on my head and a wiry plume growing out of my breast. Neighbors of the human being came to look at me. I suppose he thought they wanted to steal me. for he isolated me in a small coop. But I was given even more to eat and waxed corpulent through lack of exercise. But who wants to exercise when one can eat?

But, ah, I began to see a light. Other turkeys were treated like I was, and these, headless and denuded of their glad plumage, passed out of the barnyard by the wagonload. Dead turkeys DO tell' tales. My faith in the whiskered human being shattered. I decided that starvation in the woods was preferable to such a fate. I tried to flee. Alas, when I tried to, one fatal morning at dawn, the human being headed me off with an ax.

Here is Thanksgiving day and my finish. Bury me under your belt. Let the clouds of stuffing fall dully on my corpse. See that my grave is trimmed in cranberry jelly and add a stalk of celery to mark the last Work done promptly and satisfaction resting place of your unfortunate friend "Black Meaty."

In this day when the world is full of counsel of every kind and nearly every earnest person is out with some program or recommendation as to what is needed, there is one piece of advice that seems to be very rarely given. And yet it is one which in the early days of Christianity was always put to the fore and insisted on with such regularity that it is hard to see why in our day it is seldom emphasized. We hear a great deal about nerves, and mind cure, and psychotheraphy of all sorts, until we get to thinking that those first Christians never really got hold of the things that trouble us most. And we have heard so often the prescriptions they gave for run-down spiritual lives that we feel we need something more modern. But one of the ingredients that scarcely ever failed to find its way into their prescriptions was Thanksgiving. They believed that many were weak and sickly for no other reason than that this element in life had fallen to low proportions. Yet how often have we heard anybody, in giving a diagnosis of a broken down life, say to another: "What you need is a course of treatment in thanksgiving?"

One of the most potent factors in making people neglect their Bibles is that they come to feel that the writers were just saying things which they felt they ought to say; and most of us are never particularly helped by hearing anybody who simply says what he thinks he ought to say. But a good robust conviction always helps us, and we shall never get the Bible back for the vital thing it is until we realize that in it men are not saying what they felt they ought to, but rather what they were driven to say by their own experience.

Probably everybody recognizes the general duty of Thanksgiving, but general duties are just the ones that we leave to chance. Not until the habit of gratitude and recognition become definite and particular duty are we likely to do anything about it. We are vigilant enough in our moral lives oftentimes, and we pray enough, and we are very earnest; and yet for all that we often feel that something is wrong, something is missing. We watch, but we do not do it with thanksgiving. We watch rather with anxiety, complaint and strain. We let our requests be made known to God, but not with thanksthe chickens their place, and ran | giving. We think we can put that in at any time. We always mean to add that element some time, but do not do it in the present difficulty or stress because it seems to most of us rather an adornment of prayer than one of ness grows strong enough. Or we fall into that old common swindle of sincere, thanksgiving ought to spring up all of itself. There is just the mis-Like the other noblest qualities of life, it is something to be worked over and practiced. If Paul had felt that it was an automatic thing which took care of itself, if he had regarded it as a sort of exuberance which would burst up out of one's life whenever circumstances were suitable to it, we may be sure he would not have taken such pains to put it in every where, and insist upon it and urge it. One suspects that there was something deeply autobiographic in his constant insistence on this point, and that Paul was one who would soon have sunk down into a complaining creature if he had not taken pains with this faculty, which dies out in go many of us just because we are not aware that it is one of the things that demand painstaking.

In our day we try to meet the world's needs by answering each one of its complaints. But what is really most dangerous to men is not that some of their complaints should be neglected, but that they should fall into habit of comparing that fastens upon them until it becomes inveterate, constitutional and incurable. And that is just the condition into which many lives fall. Ten thousand complaints may be satisfied, but things be no better for it, while we go on. believing that the next satisfaction will be final. Alas, it never is. Somethings else is needed; and only hard work, and deliberate attention, and a prolonged course of treatment, will make operative our lives that great quality of gratitude with all its illuminating power. One of our greatest perils is that the prevailing type of the Christian life shall get to be like most evangelical divines 100 years ago ended their days, "a mood of gently complaining melancholy." What better description of the prevailing tone of the New Testament could we give than to say it is the exact opposite of that?

But when there is some imperative and unfulfilled need in our life, and we have discovered it, ought we not to put that before our eyes exclusively until it be met! Never. We shall get the most truthful attitude toward the unattained by taking the right position toward what has already been achieved. Forgetting the thousand and one times in which we have poor way of getting ready for another people at the present time that they give so little recognition to the things licious, that have been done and done right, the things that are nonest and of good

Even when we are humbled to the very ground by our latest sin, and feel that thanksgiving is no proper mood for us then-when it even shames us to remember our blessings-to give tnanks even then for all the rest of our life that our Father has permitted to stand firm and untouched would a truer thing. But it takes power to put it in. We are not readily equal to it. It is not the mark of a shallow optimism to be thankful. The shallow optimist is not thankful, he is just lazy and pleasant; it takes a profoundly exercised soul and a disciplined one to thank God in circumstances where the ordinary soul sees no possibility of thanks. We may have done wrong but we shall see this wrong all the more clearly and sanely, and repent of it the more perfectly, by seeing it against the unchanged background of God's righteous and kindly dealings.

And then a steadily complaining attitude introduces sort of falseness by one of the friends of a very earnest and noble worker that if he did about things he would soon cease to have any influence. The man did not realize that in his sincere effort to make things better by exposing all the difficulties and hindrances, he was all the time convincing people that things were so hopeless that it was not worth while to work at them. If he had made his complaints with thanksgiving he would have put heart in people.

Now the truth is that the very circumstances in which we feel that complaint is the only valid attitude may be the very circumstances in thanks. It does not depend on circumstances, it depends upon us. Thanksgiving, like other great powers in us, is not an occasional exuberance, but is a power to be gained by thoughtful attention and practice. If a hundred more good things were added to us, they, of themselves, could not make us thankful unless we worked directly for that spirit. Nothing that can happen from the outside can ever change from within. And, knowing in himself the growtn of a thankless spirit. the Psalmist took himself in hand and said: "I will be glad and rejoice in thee," just as he would have said, "I will" do anything else. Let any one try this for six months, and make it his discipline, and he will see a difference in his whole life.

Thanksgiving Goodies.

Colonial pudding-Mix one cupful of zuet, one cupful Porto Rico molasses, pinch of salt, three cupfuls of flour, one cupful seeded raisins, one fourth teaspoonful cloves, threefourths teaspoonful cinnamon, oneeighth teaspoonful nutmeg, one cupful sweet milk, one teaspoonful of soda, sifting the soda with the flour, one cupful broken hickory nut meats. Egg sauce. Cream one fourth cupful butter, add one-half cupful granulated sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful salt, pinch of pulverized mace, add the well beaten yolks of two eggs; then pour in this one-half cupful of hot milk; cook over bot water until the custard coats the spoon; remove from the fire and pour gradually over the stiffy-beaten whites of two eggs, beaten constantly.

Black cake: Beat one cupful butter to a cream, add one cupful sugar; beat until very light; then add one cupful molasses and after mixing thoroughly add four cupfulls of flour in which sift one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon, one-quarter of a nutmeg grated, one-half teaspoonful cloves, one cupful each of dried currants and seeded raisins and one cupful strong coffee. After blending thoroughly add the siffy-beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a paper lined tin, greasing the paper. It will take two hours in a moderate oven to bake this cake. When cold cover with yellow icing put on roughly and decorate with strips of citron cut to represent sheaves of wheat, a bit of icing placed about the sheaves to represent the strings holding them together.

Maple ice-cream. Heat a pint of thick maple syrup just to the boiling point. Remove from the fire while you beat six eggs thoroughly. Then add the syrup very slowly, beating all the time. Return to the fire in a double boiler and cook until the mixture will coat a spoon dipped into it. When cold, add a pint of thick cream beaten slightly, one teaspoonful each of vanilla and lemon, and freeze.

When Mr. Jephson was thinking of marrying a girl "with money," his friend Rogers advised against it for reasons which he was quite ready to give.

DANCER FOR THE LOVE OF WHOM MANUEL LOST HIS THRONE.

GAVE HER HALF A MILLION

Portuguese Monarch Was More Interested in This Footlight Fairy Than in His People and Soon Became Unpopular.

Lisbon.-When King Manuel ascended the throne after the assassination of his royal father, King Carlos, and his older brother, Crown Prince Luiz Philippe, on Feb. 1, 1908, he found the kingdom in a state of perilous turmoil. The young king had inherited his father's quarrels with the clerical party, the adherents of the pretender, Don Miguel, and the revolutionary party.

It will thus be seen that the spirit of revolt was ripe in Portugal, and while the direct cause of the uprising that has resulted in the overthrow of monarchy in Portugal was the assassination of Professor Bombarda, the most powerful influence leading to the revolt was that of a woman who inveigled the young King into extravagance that brought down upon his head the wrath of his subjects.

The siren in the case is Mlle. Gaby Deslys. Her dancing of the "jiu jitsu waltz" won the fancy of young King Manuel, and it was she who figuratively kicked the crown of Portugal from his head.

Mlle. Deslys made a sensation in Berlin and Paris by her Japanese dancing. Manuel, on a pleasure trip to the French capital, saw the girl and promptly went mad over her. He brought her to Lisbon and was seen everywhere in public with her.

This by itself might have done no great harm in his subjects' eyes. But he proceeded to heap rich presents upon her, to load her down with jewels and to buy her everything her fickle fancy happened to crave.

Times were hard. People were clamoring for work. Hunger was more than a mere name in Portugal. When starving men and women beheld the King's sweetheart ablaze with diamonds, whose price was wrung from the state and whose equivalent in food might have saved many a life, trouble set in.

The nation murmured. The King was deaf to the growing voice of complaint and spent more and more money on Mlle. Deslys. When Marie Antoinette was told in 1789 that the people were dying for lack of bread she asked lightly: "Why don't they eat cake?" When Cleopatra, on a wager with Anthony, dissolved a $250,000 pearl in vinegar and drank it, and when Louis XV, spent the public revenue on baubles for Mme. de Pompadour the mob had muttered. but nothing had come of the discontent.

Manuel, unluckily for his shortsighted young self, was living in a later century. Members of the bankrupt nation did not enjoy seeing $500,-000 worth of jewels given by a king to a foreign dancer. (That is the sum The farmer minds his peas (and Manuel is said to have spent on Mile. Deslys' adornment.)

But Manuel continued to perform the world-old kingly feat of dancing on a volcano. His favorite holiday was Paris. There, so riotously gay was he that the French police were forced to take him in tow and to close various famous local resorts whenever he was in the city. As in the case of Henry III of France and other royalties of the same tastes, the "fling" lasted just a Little Willie (who has been pun- trifle longer than did the sore tried ished for getting himself so dirty)- patience of the people. Manuel awoke Boohoo! I wish somebody'd tell me to find himself kicked off his throne how it is that the same dirt that and to know he had thrown away a makes my hands black will make my kingly career at the feet of a dancing

A MODERN FABLE.

It Comes From the West to Instruct People in the East.

Once upon a time a Lively Bass migrated from the Clear Water of the River in which he was Born and Raised and found a Home in a Muddy Pool where Catfish were his only Neighbors.

He was greatly Disgusted with his new Surroundings. He gave his Neighbors, therefore, Daily Lectures on their Filthy Habits, and announced his Determination to clear up the Muddy Pool. So long as he confined himself to lectures they endured him with patient Resignation.

But later on he procured a Supply of Reform Alum, and began to Distribute it through the Muddy Water in order to clarify it.

Thereupon an old Catfish with Long Horns waited upon him, and said to him in a Firm, Determined Tone of Voice:

"Young Man, you are getting altogether too Fresh. My friends and my family and myself have resided in this muddy pool since the days of the Sea Serpent, and have enjoyed the best of health, become Fat and Corpulent, and Lived to a Green Old Age. If it isn't a healthy place for you I guess you would better Move out to another Summer Resort. But if you Distribute any more of that Infernal Alum around this Hole You'll be a Dead Fish, and my family will have you fried Crisp and Brown for our breakfast in the Morning.

Moral: Those who try their level best to reform the world are seldom appreciated by the ones for whose benefit they undertake the reform.

Nothing Doing. An author who makes a specialty of stories of "our great middle West," with a heart-throb in each, tells of an odd character he met in that region. This old chap, who af terwards served the author as the main figure of a book that was largely successful, lived alone in a cabin. Woman's care being, of course, unknown, the cabin presented the spectacle of the triumphant reign of dirt and disorder. Somehow the two chanced to talk of cooking and cooking utensils. "I and the crop is sold at 12 1-2 cents. had one o them cook-books wunst," observed the old fellow, "but I couldn't do nawthin' with it." "What was the trouble?" asked the author. "Why, everything in the book be-

An "Exclamatory" Ailment.

-Harper's Weekly.

A colored man in the employ of Representative James D. Richardson of land in one of the best agricultural of Tennessee was detailing to a counties in Texas, free of liens of any friend the particulars of a relative's kind, all fenced, in a great alfalfa illness, when according to the Congressman, the following dialogue ensued between the two darkies:

"Yes, sirree!" exclaimed the negro first referred to, "Mose is sure a sick man. He's got exclamatory rheumatism.'

"You mean inflammatory rheumatism," explained the better informed colored man: "de word 'exclamatory' means to yell.'

'Yes, sir, I knows it does," quickly responded the other, in a tone of decided conviction, "and dat's jest what de trouble is-de man jest yells all de time."-Success.

It Was Not His Fault.

District Attorney W. T. Jerome is said to have told an amusing little story of a certain minor "boss" who carries in the pocket of his broadchecked vest the votes of an east side ward. As the winter drew on this boss was approached by one of his retainers with a tale of hard luck Granite and Marble and a request for help.

"Help you? Why, didn't I get them to promise you a job with the snow-shovelling gang?" the boss demanded.

"Sure," the voter replied; "but it hasn't snowed this winter.'

"Well," the boss exclaimed, petulantly, " I can't help that! Do you think I'm runnin' the Weather Bureau.-Success.

The Minister and the Gamekeeper. A Scottish parish minister met the laird's gamekeeper one day and said to him, "I say, Davidson, why is it I never see you in church?" "Well, sir," replied Davidson, "I don't want to hurt the attendance." "Hurt the attandance! What do you mean?" asked the minister in surprise. "Well, sir, you see," replied the gamekeeper, "there are about a would go poaching if I went to church."-Glasgow Herald.

Beware of imitations and unscrupulous people who claim to have a stove like or just as good as the Florence. Do not be deceived by such false claims and find it out when too late. Examine the Florence carefully before you buy.

At the end of a season's use with soft coal, there will be no soot in the pipe or flue.

THE 7FNITH

The only jointless leg bottom and base with ful radiation and large ash pan that is on the market or has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

The jointless leg bottom and base make the stove air tight below the grate, which is the only true fire keeping principle. It will be as good a fire keeper t enty years hence as it is today.

≥ The Hot Blast Air-Tight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at half the cost.

The only perfect floor heater that has ever been made, All the features are patented, and no stove manufacturer, dealer or user can copy or use same for seventeen years from date of patent without incurring liability for an action for damages.

If the FLORENCE is operated according to directions:

2 tons of slack or lump coal. The No. 49 or No. 23 will heat 2 or 3 small rooms all winter with 23/4 tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 51 or No. 25 will heat 3 or 4 small rooms all winter with 3 tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 53 or No. 27 will heat 5 rooms all winter with 4 tons of slack or lump coal. The No. 55 will heat a large store or school room with 6 tons of slack or lump coal. For a church less coal will be required. Will burn a ton less coal than a hard coal base burner of the same size and heat twice the space.

THE HOT BLAST AIR-TIGHT FLORENCE burns soft coal or slack and all the smoke and gases. No filling up the stove, pipe or flue with soot. No dirt inside or outside the house. It will burn hard coal and all the gases which escape from the hard coal base burner. It will burn wood and sawdust, wet or dry. GIRL CLIMBS GLIFF 400 FEET HIGH TO ESCAPE TIDE

CAUGHT ON SANDS BY RUSHING WATER AND FORCED TO SCALE PROMONTORY.

London.-The fishing village of Runswick, beloved by artists, on the Yorkshire coast, recently witnessed an exciting adventure.

Three visitors-two young women and a man-set out from Whitby to Runswick, walking by way of Kettleness and the sands of Runswick bay. They were overtaken at the bay by the tide, which was running in very strongly before a stiff northeasterly breeze. The imperilled party endeav-ored to escape by climbing up the cliffs, which there rise about 400 feet.

The man and one young woman found the task beyond their powers and descended again to the beach. Their predicament was observed from Runswick and three men-George Patton, John Clark and Edward Clarkhurried down to render assistance. By scrambling through the surf and over rocks the young woman and her companion got around the foot of the cliff and escaped with a drenching.

The remaining young woman, with commendable skill and nerve, persevered in her very difficult ascent of the "Claimer" and reached a stage fifty feet from the top, where a layer of perpendicular freestone barred her progress. She was watched by the inhabitants of the village from across the bay, and the young fisherman already named descended to her and eventually guided her to safety, after Spokane, Wash.-Spot, a big brown bird dog owned by Robert Roddas, accused of driving Beth, a cow belonging to Byron A. The dog was a witness in its own behalf over the objections of counsel for Wilson and won instant favor by its behavior. When called Spot advanced to the jury box and extended its paw to each of the 12 jurors in turn and barked playfully until taken out of the courtroom by the bailiff.

A dozen men and women also gave testimony for and against the dog, but as there were no eyewitnesses and the evidence was purely circumstantial, as Judge Huneke said in his charge, the jury gave Spot the benefit of the doubt and returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Wilson, who sought $75 damages for the killing of his cow, may appeal the case to a higher court on technical grounds.

Fayette City, Pa.-Incensed over the continual repetition of the phrase "Line's busy," while she and her guests were delayed at bridge whist because of an absent friend, Miss Hazel Gillen, daughter of John Gillen, the millionaire horseman and ice manufacturer of Fayette City, the other night left her home and her guests to investigate the local Bell telephone exchange and learn the reason she could not get phone connections with a young woman she wanted to "fill Trouble was found and plenty of it as was demonstrated when Miss Gillen reached the head of the first flight of stairs at the exchange. A whirlwind in the form of the much-abused "Central," Miss Lillian Usher, enveloped her, and a second later both young women were rolling down the stairs and onto the sidewalk, in each other's arms, while the air was filled with a choice collection of worse than slang phrases.

The young women took a death grip at each other on the sidewalk, when they stopped rolling, and to the amuse ment of a crowd of men and boys proceeded to pull hair and attempt to choke each other for several min utes, until one man stepped forward and separated them.

Hair rats, side comh; and one switch, which neither of the young women will acknowledge to own, were picked up on the sidewalk. In the meantime the father of the young social leader was entertaining the guests at the Gillen home, but within a few minutes the bridge party was broken

Influence was used against the telephone operator and Miss Usher was asked to resign. She escaped with only a few bruises and one slight

Light and Heat From Burning Matches Finally Induce the Insect to Back Up.

Colwyn, Pa.—The light and heat from burning matches held close to John Sunders' ear induced an insect that was driving Sunders almost insane with pain to back out of his ear. Sunders was not aware that the bug had crawled into his ear until it reached the inner membranes, when he began to suffer excruciatingly. The insect tried to go further, and the pain became more intense, when a fellowworker lighted a match to make a better examination, and the pain suddenly ceased. The moment the light ceosed, however, the pain began; but as soon as another match was lighted and held close to Sunders' ear the Spanked Wife by Precedent .

Philadelphia, Pa.-Pleading guilty in the Camden police court to a charge of assault and battery in spanking his wife, Frank Gatz, 27 years old, said: "I didn't think I was violating the law, because I often saw my father spank my mother, and he wasn't arrested." He did the spanking, he said, in a fit of anger because his wife failed to have his supper ready when he returned from work. Mrs. Gatz withdrew the charge when he promised never to spark her again, and they left the City Hall together.
